

I am not here to defend Rupert Murdoch. I do not know him, and have nothing to do with him. But I will simply say this also: that the facts are that Rupert Murdoch gets no tax benefits out of this provision even though it was engineered by a Democrat Senator from Illinois and put in the bill by a Democrat Senator from Illinois. The benefit does not go to Rupert Murdoch. He gets no tax break out of this provision, and the facts should be presented to the American people rather than all of this continued rhetoric with all of the props of golden crowns and all of the other things that are emotionally presented to this House.

We should deal with the facts as they exist.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ARCHER. I am happy to yield to the gentlewoman from Colorado.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Is the gentleman saying the stories then in the press are incorrect, because they say they are validated?

Mr. ARCHER. I have seen a lot of stories in the press that are inaccurate.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Is this story incorrect?

Mr. ARCHER. Mr. Speaker, I reclaim my time.

The gentlewoman has a press report that she is holding up for the benefit of this House, and we all know that you cannot rely on the accuracy of press reports. They pick up on certain items that are presented to them, and then they are rapidly put into print. It does not mean they are accurate.

And in this case, the accuracy of the situation is as I stated, and I am not here to defend Rupert Murdoch. But I think the gentlewoman, the Senator from Illinois, who put this into the conference report certainly should be asked. I do not think she was trying to do any sort of a favor for Rupert Murdoch, and as she presented it, she was not trying to give a special favor to anybody, but simply to say that the binding-contract rule to prevent retroactivity should apply with a certainty to this particular transaction.

If this had not been a binding contract, there is no question in my mind that it would never have been embraced in the Senate offer and would never have gotten into the conference report. But it is also very, very important to know that this has absolutely nothing to do with the tax bill and spending reduction bill that will be coming on the floor of this House this week.

So I just wanted to be here to set the record straight on this issue.

FURTHER SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

(Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to say that my point was, No. 1, Members did not know that the House had yielded to the Senate on this issue when this bill came to the floor. This was portrayed as a bill in which we were trying to help people get their tax credit back for health care. That is what we were told about.

We were told this was done away with across the board. We were not told there was one special little loophole, oops.

Now, I do not know if the press report is correct or not, but it says it was verified by six Republican staffers. So that is quite a few.

Maybe they were all wrong. I do not know. I am not on the committee.

But as a Member of this House, I resent it when we have a conference report come back with a goodie in it and we are not told about it.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. SCHROEDER. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, the whole point of the provision of the Ways and Means bill was to cancel these business deals, to cancel them retroactively, and Rupert Murdoch was able to hold on to his deal, and nobody else was, and those are the facts. Those may not be the facts the gentleman from Texas likes, but those are the facts.

THE FACTS ABOUT HAITI

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, last Friday, on March 31, President Clinton and President Jean-Bertrand Aristide and the Secretary General of the United Nations presided over ceremonies in Haiti for the transition from the multinational force led by the United States to the U.N. force. It was an impressive ceremony where the nations of the world, many contingents of the nations of the world, agreed to submit and march under the U.N. banner in order to continue the progress in Haiti toward democracy.

In the United States, this historic landmark received only moderate attention, but throughout the world and the international community, where most of the people of this planet live in underdeveloped nations, there was great rejoicing. I think that this was a special occasion where a new and special high standard was set for the new world order. A model for protecting democracy has been set in place as we go into the new world order.

The U.S. Government also has given new meaning to the concept of superpower. The U.S. superpower was used in this case to nurture democracy. The U.S. superpower was used to give the poorest nation in this hemisphere an opportunity to be born again. The U.S. superpower has demonstrated unmatched generosity and compassion. This is a superpower that has earned the right to prosper for a thousand years. This is a superpower that all Americans should fight to maintain.

The hard job has been done. The great risks have been taken. It took a lot of guts by President Clinton to make unpopular decisions. Troops went into Haiti at great risk, anticipating great risk at first, but the decision was made despite that, and we have moved the situation with almost no casualties. The great risks have been taken.

But now a very important part of the job remains, and that is to help Haiti through a period of economic development. The nations of the world have made a commitment in Paris several months ago; nearly $1.9 billion was committed to various activities to improve the Haitian economy, to jump start the economy until the private sector could take over.

It is unfortunate that despite the fact that this decision was made several months ago, almost no dollars have flowed to Haiti. The bureaucrats of the world, the bureaucrats in the various financial world organizations have moved at such a slow pace that they are tending to smother the greatness of this magnificent international deed.

I would like to quote from Strobe Talbott's report to the Congress some time ago:

For its part, the international community is doing its fair share by providing aid and technical assistance. Prior to the deployment of the multinational force, international donors and lenders met in Paris in August and determined that Haiti would need $650 million in the first year after democracy was restored. This group met again in Paris last month to review the progress that has been made since President Aristide's return, and the general assessment of this progress was so positive that the donors actually pledged $1.2 billion, nearly double what had originally been proposed. It is anticipated that $900 million of that $1.2 billion will be available over the next 12 to 18 months.

That was anticipated several months ago, but it has not happened. The bureaucrats are not moving the paper. The bureaucrats, because of their indifference or maybe laziness, what ever, the bureaucrats are threatening to smother the progress toward reestablishment of democracy in Haiti.

Troops have been there. Hard political decisions have been made. All has been put in place, but very little is happening.

I think Mr. Strobe Talbott again summed up the situation very well:

Mr. Chairman, the best defense of our Haiti policy is a simple one: We intervened in Haiti because it was in our national interest. We intervened after every other alternative had been exhausted, and we intervened because it was the right thing to do. Mr. Chairman, the American intervention in Haiti has been successful thus far. Now we must see the job through, and that means until the completion of the United Nations mission 12 months from now. As I have already stressed, we cannot solve Haiti's basic problems. The Haitian people must solve it themselves. But they will do it with the help of the international community.
